1957 Military Ball To Be Held Dec. 7

By Joe Sanda

The Military Ball will be held on December 7, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the gym. The admission of $5.00 per couple includes music by Brayden Redenaur and his orchestra, refreshments, and favors for the young ladies. Mass in the Chapel will follow the dance.

"This should be the best dance of the year," according to Cadet Lieutenant Colonel Joe Miraglia.

One highlight of the evening will be the presentation of the queen and her court, who were elected by the regiment in the photo contest on November 13. The queen will be an honorary Regimental Cadet Colonel, while two of her court will be honorary Battalion Cadet Lieutenant Colonels, and six will be honorary Company Cadet Captains. The dates of the elected young ladies will escort them for the presentation of flowers and the queen's crowning.

Writing Contest, Prizes Announced By Quarterly

The Evergreen Quarterly has announced that it will hold a short story contest from November 24 to January 20. The contest will be open to all day students of the College, except those who are presently staff members on the Quarterly. This presents a splendid opportunity for any authors, whose works have never been exposed to the public eye, to assert themselves with full assurance that all who enter have an equal chance of winning.

The short story can be written on any subject, which you may wish to choose. The only requisite that must be observed concerns the length of the story. There is a set minimum of 1500 words and a maximum of 4000 words.

Contest Prizes

Prizes will be awarded for the top three stories. First prize will be two tickets to a production of your choice at the Ford Theater, plus two tickets to the Town House restaurant. Cab fare for the entire evening will also be presented to the winner. Awards for second and third place, as yet, have not been announced, but the Quarterly promises that they will be just as valuable and worthwhile

P.R. Presentations

Besides the regimental queen and her court, the P.R.'s will present their own queen, and will also give fourageres to their pledges.

This affair is strictly formal; gentlemen will wear their uniforms, but need not present corages to their dates.

Freshman Class Elections To Be Held Next Week

Freshman Elections for the posts of President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer and Student Council Representative will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Friday, December 6, in the cafe.

The following candidates have been approved by the Dean of Studies: for President, Richard Creamer, Richard Prodey; for Secretary, Talbott Young, John Fowler; for Treasurer, Fred Koenig, Kenny Gray; for Student Council Representative, Pat Donnelly, Fred Benson.

The Vice-Presidency will be awarded to the candidate for the Presidency who receives the second highest amount of votes.

The campaigning started last Thursday and will continue till December 4.

The campaigning will be subject to the following rules regarding posters: all posters will be subject to disapproval by the Election Committee; all advertising must be confined to the basement of the Library Building; no thumb tacks may be used with the posters; all posters and their modes of suspension must be removed immediately after the elections.

20th Loyola Night and Dance To Be Held In Cohn Tonight

By John Trently

Tonight's the night! There will be songs, dances and snappy jokes for all at the 20th Annual Loyola Nite. It will begin at 8:00 p.m. in Cohn Hall and be followed by dancing from 10:00 p.m. to 1 a.m. Music for the dance will be by Don Straw's Orchestra.

The express purpose of Loyola Nite is comedy, however, and the songs are liable to be sung off key and the dances will be far from June Taylor creations. Fr. Scanlan will be directing again this year as he did last. The Glee Club will also participate.

McKenna To M.C.

The entire fracas will be supervised by M.C. Hugh McKenna. Fr. Scanlan will also be in charge of "giving the hook" to any skits which do not come up to standards.

A few of the sights which can be seen tonight are a cossack Chorus under the direction of Charles Cox, a military review and inspection and a preview showing of "Gifts Worth Giving" for the college man of '58.

Loyola Nite will not be limited to members of the Dramatic Society alone. There will be many students who are not members participating in the entertainment.

Fr. Smardon Announces Plans For Career Day

Fr. Smardon, Placement Director, has announced that Career Day 1957 will be held on December 4, from 2 to 4 P.M. The unifying theme will be: Post-Collegiate Opportunities For Liberal-Arts Graduates In Accord With Their Academic Majors.

In keeping with this theme, each of the seven major fields of concentration will be covered by a separate panel of speakers. It is hoped that the speakers will present to the students a clear description of the opportunities and requisites for satisfying service that will capitalize on their liberal arts background, and on their academic foundation in their chosen area of study.

Division By Major

To facilitate this plan, the student body will be divided into the seven groups. These groups have been assigned faculty sponsors, panel organizers, and panelists. The panelists, who are qualified scientists, business men and teachers have already been assigned specific phases of the general topics.

The Rev. John J. Scanlan discusses final arrangements for tonight's Loyola Nite with Hugh McKenna, M.C. for the show.

Bill LeFevre Is Named New Development Head

Mr. William F. LeFevre took over as director of the Loyola College Development Program on November 15.

He replaces Mr. Frank O'Hern, a professional fund program organizer, who had completed his objective of setting up and guiding the Evergreen Development Program through its initial stages.

Other Positions

In addition to his new capacity Mr. LeFevre will also maintain his previous positions in the College as Alumni Executive Secretary and Public Relations Office head.

Before his association with Loyola College in September, 1956, in the positions mentioned, the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute graduate had worked on the staff of WFBR and served four years in the Army. While working for the radio station, Mr. LeFevre held such positions as sports director and night news editor.

Nellies Describes Yearbook Plans

By Fred Benson

George Nellies, editor-in-chief of the EVERGREEN ANNUAL, has announced a bigger yearbook with many changes from the 1957 edition recently.

Enlargement of the underclass section accompanied by informal group shots and the customary individual photographs will be a highlight of the Annual. An index will list every underclassman and where his picture or pictures appear.

The senior section will be enlivened by personally submitted informal photographs. Short personality write-ups on each senior will also be included.

The activities section will be composed of candid photos taken at the meetings of the activities. Write-ups will be minimized so as to give the yearbook the appearance of a picture album.

The book itself has been enlarged from 108 to 160 pages, exclusive of the advertising.

Editorials

Be A Good One

Every year about this time there is a rash of editorials about the thankless American people among their plenty. And it is so true! With so many able writers attacking this question, let us turn our attention to some other topic.

The Loyola student is a slob and proud of it. Look at him anyday in his homespun Ivy clothes as he crowds around the flattened troughs in the basement of the Library Building. Watch him as he straddles two parking spaces along Cold Spring Lane. Observe his inscriptions on the desks and tabletops in the class room. He has no taste but in his mouth and that is jaded.

But in attempting to be a universal slob he comes upon the dilemma of being a slovenly slob and his grip falters. Even in this calling, perfection is unobtainable. There have been students throwing trash in the cans instead of the floor or tables. Some students have parked so that they only occupy one space. There are some desks that even have an almost virginal surface, or at least artistic letterings of the students favorite love's name.

This must cease! Universality in anything is most difficult. Let us try rather to further our proposition. Enough of this back sliding! If we are going to be slobes let us make the most of it. Never put anything but books into trash cans. Use the floor; it holds more. Don't be conservative when holding your coffee cup! Gesticulate! Spray all regions adjacent with the sticky brown warmth of the Brazilian bean. Forget all that you learned of parking. Close to the curb? Never! Close to the next car? Never!

Slobes of the world unite! You have nothing to lose but neatness.

Basketball Books

Contrary to popular opinion, basketball books are available again this year.

Student reaction, however, seems to belie this fact.

For those Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors who are unfamiliar with the exact nature of these books, the GREYHOUND offers this explanation.

It is not difficult to obtain a basketball book. It takes very little effort and no money on the part of the student. In fact, it saves the student money! With the book the student may attend all the games FREE. No political pull is necessary. All that it necessitates is that the student take himself to the gym, if he knows where it is (Miss McDonald will be glad to furnish a map), present his registration card and a picture of himself.

The GREYHOUND realizes that at least a quarter of the student body has ever heard of basketball books and that at least another quarter has absolutely no idea where the gym is, but what is the matter with the other half?

Is this group made up entirely of those who detest basketball? If not, why haven't over seventy-five books been distributed?

If the students are not going to support the team, there's not much point in having one. The gym could be raised to make room for the proposed Engineering Building. The athletic field could be turned into a much needed parking lot. In fact, if more people don't draw basketball books, and in general start supporting athletic events, this might be best for all concerned.

Fr. Drane Returns To Loyola After Six Years

By T.X. Murn

Time has a peculiar way of catching up with itself, we were reminded the other day, as this department was on its way to an assignment in the Faculty House recently. The office of the Rev. Joseph K. Drane, S.J., was our destination and the last time we had been in his office Fr. Drane was Dean of Evergreen. That was 1951.

"Now what was the name?", Fr. Drane asked, indicating to us that he had instantly placed the face but could not remember the name.

Fr. Drane was ordained at Woodstock in 1940. Between 1942-1945 he taught classics here and in 1943 he organized the first sessions of Loyola College's Evening School. He moved northward to Philadelphia to occupy the dean's office at Saint Joseph's College and in 1950 he returned to Evergreen as Dean of the College.

In 1953 Fr. Drane became the Regional Director of Higher Education for the Maryland Province. In the same year plans to establish a Jesuit college at Wheeling, W. Va., developed under the direction of an organizing committee to which Fr. Drane belonged.

This summer Fr. Drane made his second return to the Loyola groves, this time to the newly-created position of Academic Vice-President of the college. In this capacity Fr. Drane chairmans an internal reorganization program for the school.

Committees Meet Regularly

Fr. Drane also continues in his role as regional director. He makes visitations at all the Jesuit colleges in the Maryland Province and reports on their academic status.

Rev. Joseph K. Drane

Council News

By Ted Pantaleo

On November 9, the Student Council sat down once again to peer into the more pressing and nrgent affairs of the student community. First on the agenda was an attempt on the part of Richard Zamecki to resolve a conflict resulting from the Council and the Sodality meeting on the same day, at the same time. Several men, it appears, are members of both organizations and consequently find themselves in an akward situation. His proposal to have the Council meetings switched to four o'clock on Friday afternoons was soundly defeated.

Carrol Gunkel then spoke before the group on a proposed honor system for the college. A resolution by George Nellies calling for the formation of a committee to investigate the possibilty of having such a system at Loyola was immediately adopted. Mitch Twardowicz, Carrol Gunkel, Joseph Vinci, George Nellies and Richard Prodey will be the members of this committee.

Mr. Nellies final proposal of the day was that the activities of the NFCCS and NSA representatives be investigated by the Council. This precipated a debate among the members concerning the legality of the Council as an investigative organization and culminated in the overwhelming defeat of the motion.

The Skeptic Tank

By Bob Pula

Just as most students of a Catholic College have probably toyed with the idea of becoming a priest, so it is to be assumed that the students here have friskied with the thought of pre-graduation marriage. Since I have had some experience in this area, I thought that I might be able to present some facts to the student which will be of value to him in determining whether or not he should make the leap.

Obviously, the man who plans marriage in the absence of a full-time-job-income is asking for it. Bills for a million items ranging from aspirin to Zinkofax (recommended highly for diaper rash) tend to assume a more ogrely aspect than, even, quarterly deficiencies.

The phase of activity whereon marriage makes its greatest impact is that of STUDY. The man who wishes to study and perform the role of husband and father is in for some difficulties.

Perhaps an example will best make the point:

The student-father is simultaneously reading Ethics and baby-sitting with his sixteen-month-old daughter. (The wife is downstairs attending to the biological-emotional needs of the two-week-old daughter.) He (the father) must comprehend the brain-cell-splitting distinctions of Aristotelian-Tomistic-Higginsian Ethics and, at the same time, amuse a daughter whose inclinations are not yet philosophic. Solution? Read the Ethics to the daughter.

Father and daughter are perched on the bed. He reads:

"Hence, where an obligation must be safeguarded and two means present themselves, one more probably efficacious than the other . . ."

At this point the daughter thrusts a burnt matchstick into the father's left nostril. He smiles.

"... one must always choose the more probable means." The daughter here shouts something about agabada gurlitch and proceeds to examine the father's right eyeball with little fingers whose nails should have been trimmed three weeks ago. He grimaces.

"The validity of this principle is clear from the following cases." The daughter leaps suicidally for the edge of the bed. The Ethics book makes cracking contact with the ceiling. The father's left hand clutches frantically at the daughter's moist bottom-covering which, fortunately, holds, keeping the daughter's nose several safe inches above the floor on which has been left a sharp-cornered instrument of play. The wife calls: "How's the studying coming?" The husband grits, changes the daughter's diaper, and resumes his reading.

"A hunter may not fire at what probably is a beast but which might be a man."

Watchdog

In sitting around the old kennel of a cold winter eve not long ago, we were struck by the absurdity of some of the popular platitudes that come to our attention.

Namely, and to wit, (as they say) such quaint old saws as, "Drink is the curse of the working class". It would seem much more appropos, at least on this campus to say, "Work is the curse of the drinking class".

Also, what about the old adage that goes, "An officer is always a gentleman"? If this were true, it would seem that the R.O.T.C. sign should read, "Short coats will be worn, please".

How about, "If the shoe fits, steal it", or "Two heads are better than one (powder room)".

The following chestnut is especially meaningful to members of the Dramatics Society, and the GREYHOUND staff, "Home is where the hat is".

We overheard two athletes the other day who attend a large university in the vicinity which shall remain nameless by reason of the size of these athletes. One of these chumps . . . er . . . ah . . . champs was saying to the other, "Remember it ain't wedder youse won or lost dat counts, its how much money youse made." While on this subject, di dany of you ever notice how sports and cliches just seem to go together? If you have any doubts on this matter, just turn to Ol' Steverino's SPORTS BEAT column.

Well, in closing, just let us remind you, "An idle mind is the WATCHDOG'S workshop."

American College "Who's Who" Picks Eleven Evergreen Seniors

By Tom Himmelheber

Eleven Loyola seniors have been accepted as members by Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. They excelled in scholastic endeavors, and have participated in various activities. They are: Jim Forstner;

Jerry Frese; Vince Cucina; Bob Pula; Jack Cummings; Bill Ziegler; Sal Marzullo; Joe Finnerty; John Neubauer; Martin Horak; Earl Logue.

Forstner is president of the Glee Club, Business Manager of the GREYHOUND, and a member of Alpha Sigma Nu. Frese is president of Lambda Iota Tau, a member of Alpha Sigma Nu, Tau Kappa Alpha, and Eta Sigma Phi societies.

Cucina is a delegate to the Student Council, a Distinguished Military Student, and Business Manager of the Evergreen Annual. Pula is vice-president of L.I.T., past editor of the Evergreen Quarterly, and a feature writer on the GREYHOUND.

Cummings plays varsity basketball, is president of the Athletic Association, and is a member of Alpha Sigma Nu. Ziegler is a member of the Evergreen Quarterly, I.R.C., L.I.T. and Alpha Sigma Nu societies.

Marzullo presides over the Student Council meetings, and is a former president of the Management Club. Neubauer is vice-president of the A.S.O.

Finnerty is a member of the Scabbard and Blade. Horak is vice-president of the Mathematics Club, a member of the Physics Club, and a tenor in the Glee Club.

Logue leads the Debating Society and is also a GREYHOUND staffer and Student Council vice-president.

Flannery-Influence With Impact

By Steve Gavin

"There's an old newspaper saying — 'If you think a story doesn't say enough, take something out of it' — that's my theory of cartooning."

The speaker, a slight, earnest man, is discussing his work. His name is Tom Flannery. His occupation is editorial page cartoonist for The Baltimore Evening Sun.

"Impact," he says in a soft, clear voice, "is what I strive for. I try to keep my cartoons as 'clean,' or uncluttered, as possible."

Impact, indeed, has been the effect of this man's influence on the editorial page-reading population since he joined the staff of The Evening Sun eight months ago.

His work has been re-printed several times in The New York Times' weekly news review section and his cartoons are a frequent discussion point for politically-minded students.

Flannery's career has a somewhat anomalous touch. He was, by his own admission, "an auditor, of all things," before joining the U.S. Army at the outbreak of the Second World War.

He had done some drawing in his native Scranton area. He attended Scranton University, the local Jesuit outlet, and recalls with a characteristically liquid chuckle that the student newspaper still reprints his cartoons annually.

At this time he was drawing strictly for laughs (both meanings) and submitted some cartoons to Yank, the U.S. Army magazine. The editors of Yank liked his work so much that he was rapidly enlisted to join the regular staff.

After discharge, Flannery became a free-lance cartoonist working out of New York City. His work was published in leading magazines, such as the Saturday Evening Post, but editors noted that he was a little more serious-minded than most humor cartoonists were, or should be.

Thus, when he was offered a job as a political cartoonist for the Lowell (Mass.) Sun, he decided to follow up the opportunity.

The bespectacled Flannery spent nine years with the New England daily and then was offered a similar position with The Evening Sun.

"I snatched it up," he recalls. "The Baltimore Sun is a very influential newspaper and I'm very glad to be here. I like the town and the people very much, too."

His ideas are all his own. His daily work plan consists of reading as many newspapers as he can to formulate a background for ideas.

Since he must work a day ahead, because of the evening paper setup, a major task is to come up with ideas that will remain fresh in the light of a new day's news.

Well-traveled, Flannery has been to Europe twice and also especially admires the political cartooning of the British press.

Like all men in all fields, he is yet a student — but a most earnest, most personable, and most successful one.

Career Day Set For Next Week

(Continued from Page 1, Col. 4) to let the undergraduates benefit from the experience of recognized leaders in various fields. The Placement Department hopes that one result will be that the students gain a realization of the importance of three attributes: a sense of responsibility, a cooperative attitude, and personal initiative.

The forty panelists represent several professions and twenty-six different organizations, including industrial concerns, schools and the U.S. Army.

Loyola Begins League Campaign Tuesday

Greyhound Quint Is Host To Catholic U. In Opener

By Bob Fleishman

Loyola College will begin its quest for a Mason-Dixon Conference basketball championship when it entertains Catholic U. at Evergreen next Tuesday night, beginning at 8:45 P.M.

It will be father and son night also, to add to the festivities. Any dads accompanied by a Loyola student will be admitted free.

Catholic U. figures to be a strong contender in the M-D loop this year. Fourth in the standings last season, the Cardinals lost only Tom McKavitt and Bill Uber from the 1957 squad, and feature Bob Talbot, Marty Mitchell, and John Lynagh.

The Greyhound forces will be led by Captain Denny McGuire, Mike Sneeringer, and Gene Nieberlein. These three will probably be assisted ably by Seniors Jack Cummings and Joe Watkins, and Joe O'Hara and Tom Keys.

This game will be the 55th with Catholic U., with Loyola holding a commanding lead in the series, 38-16. Last year's contest went to the Green and Gray by an 82-66 count, after the Cardinals had taken eight of their first nine league games.

The evening will also mark the debut of Ed "Nappy" Doherty, former 'Hound great, as coach of the Loyola "B" team. His charges will take on Calvert Hall in the preliminary, with the tap-off scheduled for 6:45 P.M.

Loyola Ends C.U. Win Streak At 20

The Loyola crosscountry squad once again indicated its running power to the Mason-Dixon Conference in defeating a strong Catholic U. squad in its final meet prior to the M-D tournament which was held last Saturday at Gallaudet.

Catholic U. had been previously undefeated in two years of dual meet competition, running up a streak of 20 straight wins.

Ken Billeb regained his last year's form and won the race with a time of 16:58 over the 3.3 mile Evergreen course, only three seconds off the record held by Paul Sherman, who finished second against C.U. Stack Burton was the third man for Loyola and fourth in the race. These three men, backed up by Ed Sacco, Ken Donahue, and Jerry Frese, formed the victorious team. The win gave the 'Hounds a 4-1 record in dual meets this year.
